

Waldner's

Dear Bruce,

This letter comes to you as way overdue in its arrival and therefore for this I must apologize.

Since the time we have met and have had the opportunity and pleasure to work together I have often thought that there must be two of you.

The simple reason for this misunderstanding on my part (beyond any weakness in my vision) has been your repetitive ability to not only appear to be in two places at one time but what to most must seem like you have a clone or a twin brother participating in all of the multiple activities you manage to take part in on a continuous basis, and always for the good of others.

Without trying to get retrospective I was taught at a very early age by my parents (as so many of us were) that it is better to give than to get however whenever I think of the embodiment of that spirit today my mind always brings up your image and the sight of you doing so.

In the short 5 years that we have known each other you have always impressed me in the way you have been able to help so many people you encounter by understanding both the person as well as the business that they are in and helping them in making "the connection" for them when they may not be even mildly aware of the other person or their business.

Your way of doing this exemplifies the true meaning of "networking" (and giving) in the most positive way and goes well beyond the common definition of that word in today's business environment.

I have personally witnessed (as so many of our fellow business associates have) you go out on the proverbial limb to reach out to all that know you (a staggering feat by itself) for their help and support of each others causes both charitable and otherwise in order to help people achieve their personal and business goals and reach for something they themselves may have not believed achievable as well as give back to the community that we all share.

I truly believe that your ability to assist people in every manner is an inspiration to all that are lucky enough to come to know you and a most beneficial quality of your personality in the way that you approach life that benefits all that encounter you (or your twin) as well as your ability to see things in a humorous light but with a "real world" perspective.

In closing I want to say that I am very proud to know you and to have had your trust and confidence in the many times you have recommended both our Company Waldners and me to any of the trusted relationships you have introduced us to and hope to continue to grow that relationship with you for all the future.

Waldner's

I am equally proud to have participated in the opportunity to be part of the successful facility that functions beautifully as your office here in Long Island and look forward to any opportunity that we may have to assist you (or any of your relationships) in any endeavors you participate in now or in the future.

Thank you (on behalf of all those that know you) for being as open and sharing as you always demonstrate that you are, as well as the role model for the rest of us to aspire to.

Regards and all the best,

Barry Levy
